

Falterboy

In the vast landscape of musical artistry, there are those artists who dare to walk the path less traveled. Falterboy, the brainchild of singer-songwriter Jeremy 'Buff' Schantz emerged from the humid heart of Tampa, combining the raw power of rock with the introspective depth of indie and the infectious energy of pop punk.

Whether performing in intimate venues or commanding grand stages, his energy and passion invite listeners to immerse themselves in his songs. The connection between artist and audience is palpable, forging an unforgettable experience at each show.

Jeremy's journey as Falterboy is a testament to his unwavering dedication, resilience, and artistic commitment. He has garnered the respect of music enthusiasts and industry insiders alike. In a world filled with noise, he reminds us that authenticity and resilience are the keys to creating music that truly matters.

Promotional Quotes:

Mp3hugger blog

“A song with a feather in its cap and a fire in its belly. The good times are certainly being profligated and we are all invited along for the ride. The arrangements are loose but move in unison to heighten the sense of grabbing the moment to leave convention to the side for a few minutes. The hoarse vocals suggest the party has been in full swing for quite some time, thanks for the open door policy..”

“‘Vinetree’ has a smart blend of indie-style lyricism with offbeat & personal descriptions in the words that project solid imagery into our imaginations as we follow along. Musically, ‘Vinetree’ keeps the energy up and genuine sincerity in-check...I’m a big fan of songwriters like these guys that can tell a story that mentions a versatile amount of specifics in the lyrics and still have it come out as an idea we can all somehow relate to in some way,”
